Located near Memorial Park in Houston's emerging West End, between Memorial Drive and Washington Avenue just west of Shepherd, Caceres is an 8.3-acre, $80-plus million development of 125 custom homes, villas and townhomes by Rohe & Wright Builders and Yancey-Hausman.. The property was purchased from a local family who had, for many years, used the land to graze Shetland ponies.

Caceres is gate-guarded, with homes in the community surrounding six parks, including an oval central park nearly the size of a football field and featuring a large fountain. The land plan and architecture were inspired by the "pueblos blancos" found in Andalusia in Southern Spain. Construction is by Rohe & Wright Builders and Black Diamond Builders.
